

I am a parent of a aspiring chiropractor. My son is 15 and, while accompanying me to my Cox®-trained chiropractor, decided he'd like to become just like him. He has felt this way for a couple of years now and has backed that conviction up with applying and being accepted to his high school's medical academy. ... I have been going to chiropractors since I was a young girl and this chiropractor has the best hands in the business. He attributes a lot of that to the training he has gotten through being certified in the Cox® method. And, of course, I would like to guide my son toward the same training.

-- E.M. (patient email 12/04)